MUSICAL NOTES.

Miss Kate Santley begins her season at the Royalty Theatre, London, with a new comic opera called "The Merry Duchess," written by Mr. George R. Sims and Mr. Frederic Clay. The subject is not fautastic, or after the pattern of French operas bouffes. The plot deals with modern racing life.

The ancient "Festival of the Three Choirs" (Gloucester, Worcester and Hereford) will be held this year at Gloucester, commencing on Tuesday, September 4. Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. E. Lloyd and Mr. Santley have been engaged, and the committee are negotiating with Madame Albani. The "Elijah," the "Messiah," and the "Redemption" will be given, as well as several new works, including a symphony by Mr. Stanford, a cantata by Dr. Stainer, cuttiled "St. Mary Magdalene," and a cantata by Dr. Arnold, of Winchester, entitled "Sennach-erib."

The managers of the Southern Exposition at Louisville have devised liberal things for the musical entertainment of visitors. Messrs. Hook & Hastings, of Boston, are under contract to place in the Music Hall of the main building one of the largest organs in the counthe main bullioning one of the largest organs in the country, and the largest organ that has ever been south of the Ohio River. It is proposed to have daily organ recitals on this instrument, and some of the best performers in the United States will be engaged to give dal performances. Contracts have been made with Mr. Cappa's 7th Regiment Band to give two daily con-certs or the first fifty days of the Exposition, and with Gilmore's Band to give two concerts a day for the last fifty days. Immediately in front of the north end of the main building is a park of eighteen acres of lawn, flow-ers and forest, where the band concerts will be given in the open air.

A Vienna letter says: "The series of Mozart performances at the Imperial Opera House commenced on the 29th March. From a statistical return lately published with regard to Mozart's operas at the theatres here we learn that from the 16th July, 1782, when 'Die Entführung' was first produced, to the end of 1882-that is to say, in the space of a hundred years—the great masfigured in the bills 1,502 times, 'Don Juan' having been performed 430 times; 'Die Zauberflöte,' 366; 'Le Nozze di Figaro,' 342 ; 'Die Entführung aus dem Serail,' 151; 'Titus,' 82; 'Cosl fan Tutte,' 75; 'Der Schau-151; 'Titus,' 82; 'Cosl fan Tutte,' 75; 'Der Schauppieldfrector,' 38; and 'Idomence,' 18. The following is the order in which the works were produced for the first time: "Die Entführung, July 16, 1782; 'Der Schauppieldfrector,' February 18, 1786; 'Le Nozze di Ffraro. May 1, 1786; 'Cosl fan Tutte,' January 26, 1799; 'Dou Juan,' December 16, 1798; 'Die Zauberflöte,' February 24, 1801; 'Titus,' April 20, 1803; and 'Idomence,' April 14, 1806. According to the above, the operas of his performed in this capital during Mozart's life-time were 'Die Entithrung,' 'Der Schauspieldfrector,' 'Le Nozze' and 'Cosl fan Tutte'; 'Don Juan,' 'Die Zauberflöte,' Titus' and 'Idomenco' were not given here till long after his death."

It having been objected to the organ compositions of M. Camille Saint-Saëns that they depart from the true style of the instrument, in striving for orchestral effects, M. Saint-Saëns says in defence : " The true style of an instrument is not this or that conventional style, but that which brings into play the best of the resources of the instrument. When the organ is played in the manner of certain mediocrities, which consists of a few little easy and vul-gar effects, holding chords on the Vox na that are sustained further and further from detached notes on the pedal, and which harmonize with the soft coolings of the flute, one departs from the true organ style, to bind himself to a narrow genre without purpose or limit. In revenge, classic organists who disdain to display the marvellous effects of modern instruments, and are content to play fugues, drawing out all the registers of the organ at once, do not make music, but a confused noise, in which it is often make music, but a confused noise, in which it is often impossible to distinguish anything. If the fugues style, with pedal obligato, is what agrees best with the organ, it is on the condition that the performance shall always be clear and intelligible, which is obtained in varying the timbres, in passing, according to requirements, from one clavier to the other; but then, for the amateurs of iradition, it is no more the true organ style than are orchestral effects. The modern organ, brought to perfection, is a new instrument, which demands a new style. The true organ style at present, is that which, taking the old organ for bass, leaves a free path open to the effects of actual instruments so rich and so marvelleus."

MISCELLANEOUS STAGE AFFAIRS.

Miss Etelka Borry is to succeed Mrs. Langtry at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Nay 7, and she will perform there for two weeks. Miss Borry enacts Camille and Adrience.

Miss Genevieve Ward has a new play, entitled "Rachel," by Mr. S. Grundy, which she will produce at the London Olympic Theatre. It is in part based on a French piece called "La Volenge d'Enjants."

A new play by Mr. Robert Buchanan, entitled "Lady Clare," has been produced at the Globe Theatre, Loudon, with Ada Cavendish, Carlotta Leclercq, Harriet Jay, Horace Wigan, Lydia Cowell, Philip Beck and A. Buckiaw in the cast.

PARTING WORDS FROM MAPLESON.

The hour which Colonel Mapleson appointed for high-tide yesterday, in order that the City of Berlin might get over the bar, was so early that many people who otherwise would have taken pleasure in bidding him good bye, were thereby deprived of the delight of doing so. Despite this little oversight on the impresario's part, however, a number of persons gathered on the Inman company's pier; some of them came as early as 8 o'clock, although the Colonel had not ordered the steamship to sail before 9 o'clock. Among the first to arrive were the members of Leopold's brass band, who immediately on their arrival boarded the ship, clustered around the stove-pipe on the cook's gailey, and played Empty is the Cradle, Baby's Goue." By this time it dawned on the other passengers that something important was about to occur, so they hurled their gripsacks into the stateroom windows and hurried to the gangway. The ship was bright with bunting, and even the pier was gay with trunks, valises, steamer-chairs and steerage bedding. Nature fairly grinned. To the anxious and expectant crowd the hours appeared to lag and each muute seemed a week. The big brass clock struck the quarter bour, then the half and then the three-quarters, and still the impresario had not arrived. The sallors felt the common anxiety and showed it in the way they handled the luggage. Meantime the band had blown themselves red in the face and began to show indications of being winded. So the whistle took up the tune where they left off and only a few noticed the difference. On a sudden there was a general comm otion and from the fact that several women said "Oh!" everybody knew that something important had happened and it was of course supposed that Colonei Mapleson had arrived. The band had got half through with "Hall to the Chief" before it was discovered that it was a false alarm. Two horses attnehed to a back, had turned suddenly about, had thrown the driver off the box, had run over him, and had gone off the pler into the street on the dead run. The crowd shivered i felt better. At just ten minutes before 9 o'clock a highly polished cab was driven on to the pier. The door May poissed the several persons in livery and Colonel Mapleson, wearing the suit that had been lying four months at his tailor's, and holding in his hand an immense bouquet of roses tripped lightly on to the uncarpeted pier. The band broke out again with "Hail to the Chief" and amid cheers and hand-shakings the impresario fought his way to the gang-plank and stepped aboard the City of Berlin. He immediately took a position in full view of the spectators on the pier, and as he stood there in the flush of pride he reminded one of the well known representation of "Washington Crossing the Deliaware." The spectators crowded to the pier's edge and waved madly at him hankerchiets, overcoats and umbrelins. The band played "God Save the Queen" in compliment to Mr. Mapleson, and he and several other Euglishmen doffed their hats and bowed their heads reverently. It was a tonening sight. Men, women and children wept, went into the cabin and wept and came back and wept all over again.

The impresario cordially received a Tribuna reporter and broke out again with "Hail to the Chief" and amid The impresario cordially received a TRIBUNE reporter deck of the steamship and made a lew parting re-uks thus:

on the deck of the reteamship and made a lew parting remarks thus:

"Ah, good morning. This is a great occasion. It's the proudest moment of my life, except waen I was dined by the twenty-four representative men. But it's hard line, you know, to have to stand here with my hat off while the band is playing 'God Save the Queen.' I wish they would bite it off. I'm catching cold'; and the Colonel smelled of the roses and shivered.

"Have you made any new contracts !" asked the reporter.

porter.

"Yea," Mr. Mapleson replied, "here is a very important one. Print it full. I have contracted with Colonel Mann for a special train to be built expressly for the purpose of carrying my opera company around the country. There will be one beautiful palace car for the diva, Madame Patti, and it will be named after her 'Patti."

Madame Patti, and it will be named after her 'Patti."

Marame Patti, and it will be named after her 'Patti.'"

"Is thus to be something on the Barnum circus plan i"

"No, not precisely. It will be far more elegant. This not a circus but an opera company."

"Are you going back to join the army i"

"No," replied the Colonel, "aithough my long absence from military duty has been a deep source of regret to the Duke of Cambridge."

"Is that good for sea-sickness t"

"No. I mean, to send word to Mr. Abbey with."

"Tall is quite a 'send-off' you're getting this morn"Yes."

Yes," he replied, "almost too enthusiastic, you know.
I am it,good-bye, old fellow,"and the Colonel shook Teporter's nand warmly.
I set to descond over the ship's sides and bid the impresario good-bye was F. B. Thurber. He rushed down the pier, bolted through the crowd, scrambled over the gangway and landed in Colonel Mapleson's arms. Each embraced the other. The band ceased playing. Mr. Thurber and the impresario exchanged a few hasty remarks on the probable opera and electrationaring prices for next season and then Mr. Thurber descended via the gang-plank to the pier and returned to his butter.

The sicamship was tugged out into the channel, and escorted by the steamer Blackbird, went down the bay.
On board of the Blackbird were members of the brass band, a number of women who wept until they could weep no more, and many of the supernumeries of the Academy of Music. Colonel Mapleson sat in the most conspicaous place be could find on the ship and waved his slik hat at everything he could see. The crowd on the pier collected around a banner on which was inseriled, "We mourn our loss," and wated until the steamship was out of sight. Then they went home.

LONDON STAGE NOTES.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.] Mr. Frederic Clay, composer of "She Wandered down the Mountain Side," " I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," and other delightful songs, is on the point of bringing out "The Merry Duchess," a comic opera, the book whereof has been written by Mr. George R. Sims— "Degenet"—author of "Ballads or Babylon" and various dramatic works, of which "The Lights o' London" is perhaps the most popular. Mr. Clay, who is also at work on a cantata for the Leeds festival and a threeact spectacular opera to open the rebuilt Alhambra Theatre in the autumn, is a great enthusiast on the subject of the United States, always speaking in the warmest terms of his reception in America.

Mr. Henry Irving, who is looking forward with great pleasure to his American tour this autumn, will travel with an immense quantity of impedimenta. Scenery, dresses and decorations considered just now as barely what is necessary will much exceed a hundred tons in weight.

Last night there was a large audience at the Haymarket Theatre to welcome Mr. Hare, who on the last night of Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft's appearance as Hautres and Polly Eccles in " Caste " played his original part of Sam Gerridge, more recently taken by a very rising actor, Mr. Brockfield. Many celebrities were there, but the stalls presented no such remarkable sight as those of the Ly-ceum Theatre a few days before, when I saw Mr. Forster and Mr. Trevelyan, the late and present Irish Secretaries, sitting cheek by jowl and admiring Miss Ellen Terry, whose acting as Beatrice is delightful.

Critics here have been so terribly " chaffed " since Mr. Billy " Mowbray Morris accused his brethren of an over-keen appetite for the chickens and champagne of theatrical managers, that I "hardly ever" meet one at Mr. Irving's charming small supper parties after the play. These delightful meals are never laid for more Mr. Irving's charming small supper parties after the play. These delightful meals are never laid for more than eight or ten persons, and are held in the room of the old and extinct "Sublime Society of Beefsteaks," where the gridiron is still preserved from which the old Duke of Norfolk was accustomed to eat three or four beefsteaks in succession after previously looking in at White's Club and demolishing a cod's head and shoulders. Fish was not allowed at the old Beefsteak Club, so the Duke took his dinner literally in two courses. It is recorded by a contemporary chronicler of small beer that his Grace used to sit waiting hungrily for each steak and rubbing his plate with a shalot to obtain a delicate sompon of flavor and while away the time. It is this nobleman who, as Beranger said of "Le Rol d'Yvetot," was justly named the lather of his people. He was a nobleman of tine animal appetites. When he was not eating to excess or getting blind drunk he was pursuing rustie amourcites on his estate. He was called "Jockey of Norfolk" by his associates, including the Prince Regent, whose tastes, albeit a degree more refined, were very similar. "Jockey" was twice married but had no legitimate issue, and was succeeded by Mr. Bernard Howard, his nephew, who married Lady Elizabeth Belasyse, a daughter of the last Lord Fauconberg. This lady ran away with the father of the present Lord Lucan. She was sister of the Lady Anne Belasyse, who was puinted by ganslet oly dansberough and married Sr George Wombweil, grandfather of the present baronet. Lady Elizabeth was painted superbly by Romney.

At Mr. Irving's suppers, which are actually dinners, with oysters soop, fish, cutiets, roast game or duckling, lobster said, asparagus, green peas, sweets and fruit, one meets the most agreeable society, and the fin generally lasts from midpight till 3 in the morning. The host is at his best when his work is done, and is a charming companion. Mr. Toole is a frequent guest, full of fun and frolic. Spiteful friends say he is more amusing of the best men " in the world.

Miss Lingard, who has made a very favorable impression, appears here in "Camilie" on Monday week. Alsa Calhoun will not appear in London this spring, but will remain with us for eighteen months at least. As at present arranged "Fedora" and Mrs. Bernard-Beere will be succeeded by "Diplomacy," or perhaps a new version of Sardon's "Dora," made specially for Miss Calhoun, who will thus appear at the Haymarket Theatre in the autumn. In case "Fedora" and Mrs. Bernard-Beere abould not int the taste of the town, we are to have Mr. Pinero's new comedy to conclude the spring season.

Mr. "Gillie" Fermulas is overweighted with the season.

Mr. "Gille" Farquhar is overweighted with the part of Colonel Damer in "All for Her," in which le appeared at the Court Theatre on Thursday night. Aristocratic amsteurs are just now at a discount.

Mrs. Alfred Maddick, a very handsome woman and a new candidate for histrionic honors, is the widow of Altred Maddick, who in conjunction with Mr. Albert Levy leased several advertising volumns of The Dadiy Telegraph and made much money thereby. She was his third wife, and in features bears a strong resemblance to poor Adelaide Neilson.

THE SUICIDE OF JOHN A. DILLON.

The body of the man found drowned at the toot of West Eighteenth at on Friday has been recognized as John A. Dillon, of 407 West Eighteenth-st., who disappeared on February 26. He was subject to fits of despondency, brought on by a severe attack of smallpox some years ago, and it is supposed that in one of these fits he committed saieide. He was employed by Simpson, Crawford & Simpson as a shipping clerk. About February his accounts were discovered to be involved and he was reprinanted for carelessness. This preyed on his mind. Dillon was about forty years old. He leaves a wife and five children, the clost cleven years old. He was treasurer of Court Niagara, Order of Foresters and was a member of Atlas Lodge, F, and A. THE GAYEST SIX DAYS OF LATE.

FOUR BRILLIANT WEDDINGS-SOCIAL FAVORITES ON THE AMATEUR STAGE-"THE PRINCESS." It has been a hard week for the milliners. What with spring costumes, wedding garments, and the dresses for "The Princess," and the Kermess, these heavily laden camels of society have found no oasis in the desert. Perhaps the happy day after the bills are paid may be that green spot.

Monday and Tuesday were cold and wet, and the rain came down on the latter day as if it had never rained before and the clouds were enjoying a new emotion. But sunless skies and floods did not daunt the two pretty brides, Miss Schieffelin and Miss Baker, one of whom was married at St. Thomas's Church at 4 o'clock, and the other at the Church of the Ascendon at 5 o'clock. The scenes in both churches were brilliant. At the first wedding the service was read by the father of the groom. the Rev. Dr. Hoffman, assisted by the Rev. Alexander Mackay Smith. The bride's dress was magnificent, and the dresses of the bridesmalds were picturesque, with their long trains, square-cut bodices, and Medici collars. Their material, crôpe de chine, with ottoman velours, is pretty and clinging. A largely attended reception followed at No. 605 Fifthave. Miss Baker were the old lace of her great-great-grandmother, and looked like a picture by Copley. She has the Now-England face of Rose Stan-dish, as seen in the picture in the Capitol at Washington, of which, perhaps, some ancestor of hers may have been the original. She mar-ried the well-known young painter, Mr. J. Alden Weir, and many artist friends mingled with the fashionable assembly at Mrs. Baker's to offer their congratulations,

Mrs. Cutting gave a musicale in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robin, of Paris, and Mrs. Julian James, a granddaughter of Mrs. Robin, gave a reception for them, on Tuesday. Mr. Robin sang well; and Mr. Korbay gave one of his love songs. Miss Hunt played with facility a solo on the piano, and others sang and played.

On Wednesday all the world was again in motion, for Miss Stewart and Miss Sloan were to be married; and great was the perturbation in the flower shops. Never before, it seemed, were seen such roses as blossomed for these two brides. This tendency to double weddings gave rise to a witticism; "It is a circus with two rings," said one of the victims. The marriage of Miss Mary Rhinelander Stewart, of course, drew a fashionable crowd to Grace Church, art, of course, are was assistance on this wedding. It was a and the sun really shone on this wedding. It was a beautiful day, and Grace Church was a bower of palms and flowers. Mr. Francis S. Witherbee, the groom, is a useful and esteemed member of society. The bride's dress was of white satis, with long train, and she wore magnificent jewels. The bridesmaids were becoming tulie veils, caught back with ostrich plumes. A small reception followed at the house of Mrs. Stewart. Miss Sloan married the Rev. Joseph Duryes, at the Reformed Dutch Church in Seventh-ave.

The first presentation of "The Princess" was, of course, the most important event of Wednesday, to the ladies of the committee, the actors and the large body of friends who had bought tickets. The first half hour assured success; indeed, success was certain from the moment that Mrs. Potter, in a bewitching garden hat and red Jersey, danced upon the stage. The proxy little drama on which "The Banker's Daughter" is founded, and which was called, for the time being, "The Old Love and the was called, for the time being, "The Old Love and the New Love," was admirably interpreted by Mrs. Potter and Mr. Hill. And Miss Ashmore, too, descress credit for taking an ungrateful part and playing it with zeal. She looked handsome in it, which must be some re-ward. Mr. Conard, who was an "agreeable Rattle;" Mr. Mason, who played the old father, and Miss Van Auken, who was very clever in a small part, deserve mention. The honors rest, however, with Mrs. Potter and Mr. Hill, who surprised the audience into unaccustomed tears and appreciative smiles.

"The Princess," reduced by lack of time to the first and last lines of that noble poem, was unique, refined and dramatic. Mrs. Potter's French declamation come out brilliantly in the stately speeches, and the charming amateur scored a new triumph. Mr. Hill again a owed his versatility and played the somewhat trying part of The Prince with self-restraint. The costumes of the girl students were picturesque, and the whole score looked like an old fresco by an early Italian painter. These girls had been well drilled by Mr.Belasco who is a clever stage manager. Mrs. Walter Andrews brought down the house by her spirited drilling of her charges, and gave her little speech with "vim." Mr. Von Else and Mr. Townsend gave Florian and Cyril well; and Mrs. Frank White and Miss Van same defection from their ranks which so embarrassed the managers of "The Princess," and many projected dances had to be given up. But there were booths for fortune-teiling and side anows, and much gavety. The Dutch dresses were original and new to the modern gazer, and the old jeweiry, carefully saved by the descendants of the Mynheers, was effective. That gold crown which Dutch brides wear is a remarkably becoming bit of costome. The Dutch dances reminded one of Fiemian pictures, a though the performers lad not the heavy figures of their dear grandmammas. America has lightened the ankles and waists of these descendants of the Holland women.

On Tauraday evening Miss. Marshall O. Roberts gave a large dinner. On the same evening an entertainment was given by amateurs at the nonce of Mr. S. G. Ward for the Thursday Evening Clin. The first place was a comedy called "Second Thoughts," in which Miss Johnston and Miss Gertrude Clasever appeared as the Honorable Helen Cliveden and Mrs. Mesharon, a rich widew. A little stage was created in the back parior, and the effect was agreeable. Then followed an opera comique in French, called "La Serenade," the music arranged by Mr. Owen Wistar, the grandom of Fainy Kenable. Miss Howard sang in the part of Mercedes and Miss Gregory in Juanta. Miss McCullium and Mr. Oudin sang behind the scenes.

The dramatic talent of New-York women has been severely tested during the last week.

On Friday evening Mrs. Charles H. Ward gave the last of those musical club evenings which have been successfully going on all winter. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and her daughter, Miss Macul How-, who had come on from Boston to see the last performance of "The Princess," were precent.

On Saturday Mrs. H. Victor Newcomb gave a lattler lunch. This with the Kirmoss finished the gayet well of the gayet week of sprint. Gayety dies hard this year.

THE KIRMESS AT DELMONICO'S.

A novel entertainment called the Kirmess was given at Delmonteo's yesterday, beginning at 2 p. m. and ending at 12. fair and a fancy-dress ball, and was one of the most en-joyable entertainments of the social season. The Kirmess was gotten up by the Ways and Means Committee of the Skin and Cancer Hospital, which is situated at No. 243 East Thirty-fourth-st., and the proceeds will be devoted to paying the expenses of the very poor patients. This committee consisted of Mrs. William C. Schermerhorn, Mrs. Julius Catlin, jr., Mrs. R P. Lounsbery, Mrs. J. C. O'Connor and Miss M. L. Walker. The Auxiliary Board consists of Mrs. Richard Irvin, jr., president; Mrs. H. B. 'an Auken, vice-president; Miss M. L. Waiker, treasurer, and Mrs. J. A. Lowery, secretary. The pairons and patronesses were Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. Robert Hoe, jr., Mrs. W. K. Vanuerbilt, Mrs. John Sherwood, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. James Wateroury, Mrs. Lewis Jones, Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop, Mrs. Marshail O. Roberts, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mrs. Bayard Cutting, A. Wright Sanford, Chauncey M. Depew, Chester Griswold, O. K. King, W. H. Bridgham, L. von Hoffman, Cornelius Vanderbilt, J. Pierpont Morgan, J. Colemen Drayton and H. B. Hollins.

Charles Delmonico gave the use of his second floor. on which there are the large ball-room, and five or six other rooms. He also turnished the music, which was Lander's full band. Hodgson gave all the flowers which were sold in the flower-room, while Klunder decorated the ball-room at a greatly reduced price. The rooms were draped with various colored bunting, American and German flags being grouped together. The walls of the ball-room were one mass of solid green reaching from floor to cefling. This was interspersed with shields and banners of buttercups, tulips, lilacs and Jacqueminot roses. On one wall were two yellow shields, one bearing the inscription, "Orange Boven," and the other, "Voor Got out our Vaderland."

Got ont our Vaderland."

The musicians' balcony was hung with large festoons of evergreen and myrtle. Chinese lanterns in every design were hung about the room, groups of three being piaced befere each mirror. The chandelier lights were covered with yellow shades, and in the evening, when all the lanterns were lit, the scene was a beautiful one, the refreshment-room had various booths about it, at which were sold waffles, egg-plaats, and other German disnes, with strawberries, tees, saileds and the like. One room was devoted to the children's entertainment. Here were a Punch and Judy, negro minstrel and other shows, also a well at which could be purchased a curious German drink. This department was in charge of Mrs. William C. Dewey, assisted by her daughter, Miss Neff, and also by Miss Parsons. Mrs. Dewey wasjattired as a Holland lady in a dress consisting of a crushed-strawberry brocade petticoat, a long black silk apron, a velvet bodice with large white puffed sleeves and guimpe, and a high white cap with long black ribbons at the back. She wore a little sheulder shawl two hundred years old, and beautiful diamond jewels. Miss Neaf was attired in a peasant dress of plink, blue, and searlet, and had charze of an immense grab-bag, while Miss Parsons in a similar costume was Rebeccs at the lemonade well. The flower -room was decorated with a quantity of snow-balls. In the centre was an octagonal booth at which the flowers were sold. All the ladies in this room wore costumes of the German peasantry, each different from the other. Mrs. R. P. Lounsbery was in charge. She was assisted by Mrs. F. P. Woodbury, Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. Lawrence Hopkins, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Mrs. Coleman iDrayton, Miss Astor, Miss Jean Turnur, Miss Jessie Van Auken, Miss M. S. Walker and Miss Murray. The gypsy encampment, in the next room, was well arranged. Tall cedar-trees were placed about, and a pile of logs, ready to be lighted, was on the flow. Two tents were at one end. In these were the fortune-tellers, all in gypsy costume. The Chief was Monteflore Isaacs in a costume of scarlet and golden braid, with a crown and buckled shoes. The Queen was Mrs. K. W. Moore, and the assistants, Mrs. Julius Catlin, Mrs. Worden, Miss Wilkinson, the Misses Catlin, Miss Edgar and Miss Bartett.

The orchestra played during both afternoon and evening. In the afternoon a pretty Virginia roel was danced by children, which had been gotten up by Mrs. Richard Irvin, jr., and Reginald Francklin. In the evening the crowd was greatest, and all the rooms were filled, although the price of tickets was increased. Two quadrilles, the Dutch and the Tyrolean, were danced in costume. Those who took part in the first were Miss Jessie Van Auken and Mr. Thiomad, Mrs. Lounsbery and Mr. Cowdin, Miss Gibert and Mr. Courtney, Miss Coudert and Mr. Cutting, Miss Deremus and Mr. Hadden, Miss Barnard and Mr. Thoopeon, Miss Otls and Mr. Beek

HELD FOR MALPRACTICE.

The death of Mrs. Sidney Smith in the hut of Mrs. Margaret Carman, at Millburn, town of Hempstead, on Tuesday afternoon last, is still exciting the people in that vicinity. The woman was the wife of a printer and was only eighteen years old, and had one child. On the day named she visited Mrs. Carman, an abortionist, and sought her vile services. Shortly after 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon Dr. Hammond, of Baldwins, was called to Mrs. Carman's house. He there found the dead body of Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Carman rold the doctor that the woman while talking to her was seized with convulsions and fell on the floor and expired. An inquest was held yesterday. Mrs. Carman was present with her husband, and was an attentive listener throughout the proceedings. She is a coarse, masculine-looking woman, about forty years of age, and has three children, the eldest being about twelve years of age.

Sidney S. Smith, the husband of the deceased woman, testified that on Tuesday morning last he gave his wife $10 to make some purchases. His wife had told him twice that she had visited Mrs. Carman. It was the general talk that Mrs. Carman was an abortionist, and when his wife told him that she had been there he forbid her to go again. He beiteved from what his wife teld him that she had visited Mrs. Carman's for the purpose of having an abortions produced.

Alice Muse, mother of the dead woman, testified wife of a printer and was only eighteen years old, she had visited Mrs. Carman's for the purpose having an abortion produced.

Alice Muse, mother of the dead woman, testified that about two months ago her daughter told her that she was going to Mrs. Carman's, as the the situation she was in would the her to home. Medical testimony was given showing that her death had testimony was given showing that her death had resulted from malpractice.

Mrs. Carman testified that Mrs. Smith called to see her and complained of feeling very tired. She took a seat in the rocking-chair, and in a moment had a fit and feil on the floor. She gave her some whiskey and laid her on the bed, and sent at once for Dr. Hammond and Mrs. Balawia, but the woman died before they arrived. The jury found that Mrs. Smith came to her death at the hands of Margarel Carman.

Mrs. Carman was placed in charge of Officer Wright, and on Monday will be taken before Justice Wallace for commitment for the action of the Grand Jury. Grand Jury.

WAS THE WOMAN CLUBBED TO DEATH?

Mrs. Mary Ryan, a widow, age sixty, who lived with her married daughter, Mrs. Nora Hartwig, at No. 133 West Twenty-fourth-st., was locked up in the Thirrieth Street Police Station by Policeman Gragg on Wednesday evening charged with intoxication. She appeared to be very much under the influence of liquor, and the officer said that he had For three days these industrious amateurs endured the strain of continuous excitement and appliause—the reward of six weeks of hard work. The pseuniary result was satisfactory. The audiences were crowded, fashionable and most sympathetic every day, and every fair actress was loaded with flowers and compliments and applauss.

The last day of the week saw the Kirmess, at Delmonico's. An out-of-door fair in the house is an anomaly, but this was a gay and successful adventure. The laddes who got it up had to meet that same defection from their ranks which so embarrassed the managers of "The Princess," and many projected dances had to be given up. But there were booths for tion of her body at the Morgue. He ascertained that she had received bruises on the breast and right arm and a laceration of the brain, evidently produced by a blow with some blunt instrument on the left side of the head. Her left eye was discolored badly. It was difficult to decide the cause of death, because there were evidences that the weinian had suffered from a coholism, which might have proved fatal in the absence of her injuries. The policeman who arrested Mrs. Ryan denied that he had used any violence.
